

Van Zyverden's
TRUMPET VINE ORANGE

Trumpet vine (Campsis Radicans), also known as trumpet Creeper or hummingbird vine, is a fast and high climbing perennial vine that is very easy to grow. Its deciduous woody vine is known for showy, trumpet-shaped flowers (3 1/2 inches long) that attracts much wildlife to the garden. Birds sometimes nest in the dense foliage. It inhabits woodlands and riverbanks and is also a popular garden subject. It tolerates deer, drought, and clay soils. The foliage grows well in the shade, but the plants need good sun for best flowering. Good in woodland gardens and naturalized areas. Provides quick cover for fences, arbors, trellises, walls or other structures in the landscape or can be grown along the ground to camouflage rock piles, old tree stumps, or other unsightly areas.

Attracts hummingbirds to the landscape

Long blooming, summer into fall

Adapts to nearly any soil type and likes summer heat

About This Variety: Its flowers are orange to red in color, with a yellowish throat that appears after several months of warm weather.

Growing Instructions: Be sure to choose a suitable location prior to planting as well as a sturdy support structure. Dig a hole about a foot deep and a foot wide. Set the plant in the hole, and fill it half full with soil. Water. After water is drained, fill the rest of the hole with the remaining soil. Then water thoroughly again and continue doing so regularly. Fertilization may be necessary.
