All-America Rose Selection

Moderate fragrance

About This Variety: Queen Elizabeth, a grandiflora type All-America rose, was elected to the WFRS of Fame in 1978 and was declared the world's best rose in 1980. Queen Elizabeth has an imperial quality that has captured the world. It crowns its strong stems with commanding clusters of long high-centered buds and exquisite dawn-pink blooms, and it grows luxuriantly almost anywhere it's planted. Bushy and vigorous. Nearly thorn less stems with clear double flowers.

Growing Instructions: 1- Select a well-drained location away from trees and hedges where there is sun at least half a day. 2 - Prepare the site by digging a hole 12" to 15" deep and about the same depth. If available add 6-8" of compost, manure or top soil. 3 - Best to plant immediately upon arrival. Remove package and soak the bush in water for about an hour. Prune the canes back to about 1" above the bud union. Then spread the roots out evenly into the prepared hole. Plant at a depth whereby the bud union (where the branches come together) will be about 1" above the soil level after back filling the hole. 4 - Best to mound soil or mulch over the bud union until the danger of frost has passed, removing it once new growth is observed. 5 - Soak soil every week until it gets established when rain fall is deficient. 6 - Fertilize with a season-long balanced fertilizer once leaves start to emerge.

Care Tip: Pruning off an inch or so off the canes will help send a message to the rose that it is time to start growing once again.

Exposure: Full sun to partial shade

Height: Grows 36-60" tall

Spacing: Plant 36" apart, bud union should be 1" above ground level

Hardy in: USDA zones 5-9
