Happy Jack Sarcoptic Mange Medicine has a vegetable, lanolin U.S.P. and cod liver oil U.S.P. base. Nothing like it. Such soothing relief for moist or dry skin irritations due to sarcoptic mange on dogs and horses. We are interested in hearing of the result you get.

Early 1940s in Snow Hill, NC. James G. Exum had a kennel full of beloved beagles and mange was making their lives miserable.

Being a tinkerer, an amateur chemist, and the owner of a very large Pharmacology book, James mixed up a batch of mange medicine that worked better than anything else on the market.

As different ailments struck his dogs, James created treatments to cure them. James' 2 sons helped grow the company and now the third generation of the family is leading the company. Much has changed since the early days, but for Happy Jack, it's always been about a love for animals and making products that are safe and effective.

Happy Jack products are approved and regulated by the FDA, EPA and state Departments of Agriculture and sold over-the-counter throughout the U.S.A.
